

Standard 2 Reflection on Final Practicum Excerpt

Being a graphic artist, I believe that presentation is a big part of everything. Perhaps because I love books and have a fertile imaginations, when I think of myself as a teacher, I imagine a fictional character that is bright, colourful and warm, happy, professional and always acts ethically. I think in life, you choose to play the roles which best match your personality, and for me, being a good teacher seemed like a perfect match. A teacher should always be supportive, honest and true. This bright persona is reflected on everything I do, from my clothes to my mannerisms. I love being a teacher.

During my last practicum, I was able to easily gain the trust of my students. I became a person they could come to when they had problems. And yet, without someone else's assessment of our behavior, we sometimes are completely off-base. I chose this excerpt from my supervisor as it confirms that I am succeeding in being a good role model for the children as well as a positive addition to the profession. I hope to be able to continue supporting and helping students and other teachers for years to come.

How to incorporate an open policy for sharing ideas between teachers?
